Most people who visit Bristol Bay want to fish. And most of them want to fish with a local, home-grown guide who knows the waters, the wildlife, the people and the way of life here. That's why we're training the region's young people to explore careers as guides – so young people can stay in the region, earn a prosperous living, advocate for the health of the watershed and offer visitors an authentic experience of one of our country's most special natural places.
